🕒 10:00 AM – Noon: Growing hardy kiwis with Les Beachy. Have you tasted these remarkable miniature kiwis yet? Every bit as delicious as the more familiar larger fuzzy kiwi, the smooth-skinned hardy kiwi is much easier to eat, skin and all. The fruits of these vigorous-growing natives of China come in a variety of flavors, colors, and sizes, and are ideal for fresh eating, as well as jams, pies, etc. And, just about every home gardener in North America can grow them. Subjects covered will be selecting varieties, sitting, spacing, trellising, training, and pruning. Don't miss a golden opportunity to learn from the mistakes of someone who has grown them for over 25 years! As an added benefit, you can contact Les and stop by his farm for hands-on pruning experience.

🕒 10:00 AM – Noon: Pawpaws: America's Forgotten Fruit: From seed to fruit 'Mr. Pawpaw,' Ted Weeden, shares his knowledge of this well-adapted and under-appreciated native fruit. Pawpaws, America's largest native tree fruit, aren't easy to grow from seed and get established. Ted will demonstrate the art of grafting. Ted knows how, growing dozens of varieties. He is well known at the Ohio Pawpaw Festival and the Kentucky State University Pawpaw Research Station, and has discovered many local native pawpaw stands. In September, you can join Ted on his Pawpaw tours.

🕒 10:00 AM – Noon: Scion Collection with Chris Buck and Steve Shambada. Please join this class to learn the best methods for proper scion collection and storage. Chris and Steve will discuss timing (when to collect), selection of specific wood, labeling, and multiple storage methods. Good quality scions are 50% of the grafting equation. Come learn the best techniques to ensure a successful grafting season.

🕒 Noon – 1:00 PM: Bring your own lunch, or pop to the nearby Rt. 72 commercial strip. Buy replacement (empty) bee tubes from Pete Fisher. Trade in filled tubes for empty ones (see ad page 7).

🕒 1:00 – 3:00 pm Hickories with Zach Elfers. Zach runs a small nursery called Future Forest Plants, which specializes in native tree crops like hickories, persimmon, walnuts, hazelnuts, chestnuts, plums, pawpaw, and more. In this talk, Zach will share his passion for hickory trees. He will touch on the many different varieties, their uses, wildlife value, history, grafting, and propagation among other things. Zach is a member of the Northern Nut Growers Association (NNGA), the North American Fruit Explorers (NAFEX), & the Keystone Tree Crops Cooperative (KTCC).

🕒 1:00 – 3:00 PM Persimmon, quince, and medlar with Arian Hojat. Have you ever tasted a persimmon and wondered why some are sweet and crisp while others soften into a rich, jelly-like treat? Join us as we dive into the fascinating world of persimmons—covering everything from Asians/Americans/Hybrids, traditional Japanese drying, natural dyeing, and the remarkable diversity of varieties. We'll explore how breeders create new hybrids, why flower types matter, how various traits shape flavor, and which varieties might be suited for colder regions. Practical topics such as grafting techniques/timing, pests and diseases, and choosing popular nurseries for scion/rootstock. Don't miss this opportunity to discover one of the most unique and rewarding fruit trees you can grow — plus a look at equally intriguing odd fruits like quince, medlar, and che!

🕒 1:00 – 4:45 PM Apple Tree Pruning Basics – Taught by Master Gardener Steve Shambada and Ken Kuzdro, the presentation begins indoors with a thorough handout and discussion of pruning principles- 1 hour and 45 minutes in the classroom. Participants then carpool to receive hands-on training in pruning apples trees in Ken's nearby orchard - 2 hours. This session packs in a lot of useful information. Dress warmly and bring hand pruners, if you have them. Rain or shine.

The Pruning Workshop has extra time allotted. After the classroom session, participants carpool to BYFG supporter Ken Kuzdro's nearby orchard for lots of hands-on pruning, training, and practice. Steve will stay as long as required for participants to master the basics (or until it gets dark) !!
